

1. Celman, upon the advice of General Roca, who recognized the strength of public opinion in the outbreak, placed his resignation in the hands of congress on the 31st of.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

2. North of the city of David, the king, under divine guidance, chose a site for the Temple of Jehovah, which was erected with great magnificence by Solomon.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

3. After serving under Stadion in Galicia, he was in 1848, after the outbreak of the revolution, appointed president of the administration and Stadthalter in Bohemia.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

4. He also badly by concerning himself with the active army and disbanding the Semenov regiment.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

5. While none of us opted for involvement, Howie's insistence was the first time he hadn't like a tethered toddler.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

6. She dropped the hands as a barrier between them, wanting to feel the comfort he offered, and rested her hands against his chest.
 - a) act
 - b) acting
 - c) acted

7. She was as fond of as Goethe, and like him began with a puppet stage, succeeded by amateur theatricals, the chief entertainment provided for her guests at Nohant.
 - a) act

- b) acting
- c) acted

8. He then entered into fresh intrigues with the court of Spain, in concert with the marchioness of Verneuil and her father d'Entragues.

- a) act
- b) acting
- c) acted

9. You could say they were used for leverage if the country trounced too far on our generosity or refused to take into account our national interest when they up.

- a) act
- b) acting
- c) acted

10. Why would they be responsible because Byrne like a jerk and decided to go for a midnight swim—drunk or sober?

- a) act
- b) acting
- c) acted